

Nevada Five Is In Good Shape For Basket Games

The Nevada quintet is working out every morning in preparation for the Outrigger and National Guard games that they will play on January 3 and 4. The sagebrushers are in good shape, from all reports, and should make the day a busy one for whoever takes them on first.

In the meantime the Surfers and the Oahu Grenadiers are playing some snappy little basketball contests together, just to get in trim for the visit-will precede the main event. It is one ever staged on these Islands. Incident customary Pearl Harbor fashion, comers. The last reports indicate that the Outriggers have been showing the Guardsmen a nice warm time of it in the practice matches.

The four thousand seats, which by the way are perfect bleachers with foot-rests and everything, that were put into play for the premier boxing show of the Honolulu Service Club last night, will be on hand for the spectators at both these basketball games. The Armory is to be the scene of the conflicts, and the capacity of the bleachers will be none too large for the crowds that will go to the big building in the hope of seeing the Nevadans humbled, once at least.
